Our Security Window Film

Your windows play a key role in the security and comfort of your building. Security window film adds an extra layer of protection, reinforcing your glass while offering additional benefits beyond security.

Where Can Security Window Film Be Used?

Not all glass is created equal, and some areas of your home or business need extra protection. Our security window film adds a tough, shatter-resistant layer to keep your space safe without changing how your windows look. Here are some of the best places to use it:

1 Entry Doors & Sidelights

Steel entry doors and fiberglass entry doors often have glass panels that can be a target for intruders. Security film reinforces these areas while keeping your door's appearance intact.

2 Patio & Sliding Glass Door

Patio doors and garden doors can be vulnerable to break-ins. Security film adds a protective layer that helps deter forced entry while preventing shattered glass from accidents or impacts.

3 Large Windows

Large windows can also be a safety concern. Security film strengthens the glass against storms, accidents, or attempted break-ins.

4 Storefronts & Display Windows

Your windows are important to the aesthetics of your business Applying security window film helps protect merchandise and premises while keeping your business inviting.

Additional ways Comfort Windows can help enhance your home's security and protect against unwanted intruders.

Protect — Make your home less appealing to intruders.

- Lighting: Brighten up entrances, pathways, and dark corners with motion lights. Criminals thrive in darkness—light takes away their advantage.
- Visibility: Keep fences, hedges, and landscaping low so neighbours can spot unusual activity.

Detect — Stay aware of what's happening.

- Cameras: Position visible cameras on key entry points such as doors, driveways, and garages. Just knowing they're recorded can deter attempts.
- Intelligent alerts: Sync your security system to your phone so you'll know immediately if someone approaches.

Delay — Give yourself valuable time.

- Doors: Use reinforced strike plates, longer screws, and deadbolts to make forced entry harder. Even seconds of delay can make a difference.
- Windows: Install security film or locks to slow down intruders and discourage a quick smash-and-grab.

Defend — Have a clear response plan.

- Family readiness: Ensure everyone knows what to do in case of a break-in — from safe exits to emergency contacts.
- Safe retreat: Select a secure room with a sturdy door and a means to call for help.

Peace of mind isn't just about locks and cameras. It's about preparation, awareness, and confidence — knowing you've done everything to keep your home and family safe.
